REACH legislation entered into force on 1 June 2007 bringing with it a number of changes which have a profound impact on plastics processors. The process for compliance is complex and the scope is broad but help is available.

Taking place one month after the start of the pre-registration stage on 1 June 2008, this seminar will provide a crucial update for all suppliers to the industry and plastics processors.

Key questions, which will be addressed in this seminar:

♦ Do you know what you have to do to ensure that your business complies with REACH?
♦ Do you realise the implications REACH will have on your customers and what your customers will expect from you?
♦ How do you develop a successful strategy to deal with REACH?

This BPF seminar is aimed specifically at plastics processors but will be of interest to supplier and will provide comprehensive advice on

The subjects covered in this seminar are crucial, I still don’t believe all have grasped the serious implications for their business. REACH is now upon us!

Seminar Outline

REACH is potentially one of the most influential and complicated pieces of legislation to hit the plastics sector. This programme draws together experts from across Europe to address the impact that this significant change in EU regulation will have upon the plastics supply chain and all plastics applications in the UK. The seminar is focussed specifically on how these changes will effect the plastics processor. Key challenges will be highlighted and discussed. Time is allowed for networking and general discussion.

Who Should Attend:

This will be of interest to all companies in plastics. The event is structured for sales, marketing and product development professionals, regulatory and quality management as well as senior management.
