Attitudes to chemicals safety are changing and the REACH legislation is coming your way in 2007. Changes will have a profound impact on manufacturers of plastics parts, materials and additives.

Concerns include:

- Withdrawal of common use chemicals
- Extended and vigorous testing regimes
- Complicated, restrictive and time consuming systems
- Confidentiality of formulae exposed
- Impact on global competitiveness
- Increased competition from non EU Imports

This seminar will outline what change means to you and provide vital information on the actions that you must take.

Your company should be preparing now!
The subjects covered in this seminar are crucial, I still don’t believe all have grasped the serious implications for their business, REACH is literally round the corner now.

PAUL TURNER, KRONOS LTD
Seminar Outline

REACH is potentially one of the most influential and complicated waves of legislation to hit the plastics sector. This programme draws together experts from across Europe to address the impact that significant changes in EU regulation will have upon the plastics supply chain and all plastics applications in the UK.

Key challenges will be highlighted and discussed. Time is allowed for networking and general discussion.

Who Should Attend

The event is structured for sales and product development professionals, regulatory and quality management as well as senior management from the plastics supply chain including additive and masterbatch suppliers, plastics producers, processors, converters, compounders, distributors and recyclers.
